ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

Invitation to scientific cooperation

Dear members of the scientific community!

ACADEMIC SCIENCE PUBLISHING invites professors and lecturers, researchers, doctoral candidates, independent researchers, master’s students, young scientists, students and specialists from various fields to participate in the international scientific and practical conference to be held on 1 November 2026.

The conference aims to study global problems by combining the capabilities of different disciplines, disseminate the results of fundamental and applied research, and present proposals for putting scientific findings into practice.

Participation format

The conference will be held without scheduled presentations, in the form of an electronic collection of scientific articles and abstracts.

Participants

- Professors, lecturers and research staff
- Doctoral candidates and independent researchers
- Master’s students and young scientists
- Students and specialists in their fields

Publication and certificate

Electronic proceedings and an electronic certificate with a QR code.

Indexing: Google Scholar, Zenodo and OpenAIRE.

SCIENTIFIC FOCUS

Aim and objectives

Main aim

To bring together research aimed at developing practical scientific solutions to global problems, share new findings with the scientific community, and develop interdisciplinary and international scientific cooperation among researchers.

01 To examine the natural, technological, economic and social aspects of global problems through scientific research.

02 To disseminate new findings from fundamental and applied research, along with modern scientific methods.

03 To develop interdisciplinary cooperation among domestic and international researchers working in different fields.

04 To explore opportunities for putting innovative ideas and developments into practice.

05 To support the work of young scientists and researchers and bring together practical proposals.
